Flying Industry in Gettysburg Brings First Test Case Before the Public Service Commission

Gettysburg Flying Service Contests Battlefield Airways' Bid For Charter.

Final argument on the application of the Battlefield Airways, Inc., for approval of their charter and the right to do business and operate as an airport in Cumberland township, conduct sight seeing passengers over the Gettysburg battlefield and carry passengers on cross-country trips, was held before a full membership of the public service commission, Monday afternoon in Harrisburg.

A protest against granting the charter was filed by the Gettysburg Flying Service, Inc., first company to be granted a charter in the state, which was incorporated in 1927. The Gettysburg Flying Service, Inc., has been furnishing such service as is outlined in the application for a charter by the Battlefield Airways, since 1927.

Unique Question Involved
The question before the commission is the first time such an issue has arisen before a court or a commission in the United States. The Gettysburg Flying Service, Inc., contended that it was furnishing all the service necessary to meet all the demands of this district, and to permit competition would be ruinous to its business and that it would discourage the development of commercial aviation.

The Battlefield Airways contended that the increasing of aviation facilities would stimulate interest in aviation and that it would encourage the development of aviation. It also contended that in view of the acts of Congress and the aviation legislation passed in Pennsylvania, the public service commission was bound to encourage the increase of facilities.

Upon the outcome of this hearing will depend to a large extent the future development of commercial aviation, according to several aviation enthusiasts in this city. They declare that larger aviation companies have delayed establishing airports and installing service until the question is decided by the Commission.

They contend that the larger companies will not be justified in investing large sums of money for fields and equipment, establishing a business and then be compelled to compete with other companies in a district where the business does not warrant such competition.

The applicants for a charter were represented by Attorney Joseph Millenson, Washington, D. C., while the protesting company was represented by Attorney John D. Keith, of the firm of Keith and Sheely.

SMITH AHEAD IN STRAW VOTE
Takes Lead in Times Poll For First Time During County Canvass.

For the first time since The Gettysburg Times started its Adams county straw vote on the approaching presidential election, Governor Alfred E. Smith, of New York, the Democratic standard bearer, forged ahead of his Republican opponent, Herbert Hoover. The New York governor leads by 48 votes.

The Democrat trailed the Republican candidate throughout the contest, from its inception, until this morning, when a batch of Democratic ballots boosted his total to within easy striking distance of Mr. Hoover.

At noon today, another batch of votes put the New York governor over the 500 mark, while Mr. Hoover added but two votes to his total of yesterday. The total shows Smith with 511 votes, while Hoover has 463.

LIONS INDORSE PLAN TO BOOST MOTOR ROSTER

President Of A. A. A. Unit Here Points Out Advantages Of Club.

The work of the Gettysburg Motor Club and the proposed expansion of that organization were enthusiastically endorsed by the Gettysburg Lions Club at its regular weekly meeting at the Hotel Gettysburg Monday evening.

John W. Bream, president of the Motor Club, addressed the Lions relative to the accomplishments of the organization and outlined the plans for broadening its scope.

"Gettysburg occupies a unique position which is one that makes necessary the existence here of a strong motor organization," Mr. Bream said.

"As long as there are so many things possible to happen to a man driving an automobile, or even owning one, membership is worth more than it costs. To the local automobile owner who travels his affiliation with an A. A. A. club is even more valuable in that he has at his disposal the services of American Automobile Association clubs all over this continent.

Service to Tourists
"However, the big thing is that an effective motor club fills the need for the thousands of inquiries for information and road service of various sorts that tourists require while here. It is really astonishing to know the many calls for service that are made to the Gettysburg Motor Club."

Mr. Bream gave several instances of service given visitors and told of the interest the state organization, the Pennsylvania Motor Federation, and the national organization, the American Automobile Association, are taking in the local club in that they wish to be well represented here so that the many "Three A" members of the country will be well serviced in Gettysburg. To this end, the Pennsylvania Motor Federation has sent its field secretary, E. D. McNelly, here for three weeks in order to bolster up the membership roles. Additional assistance will be in all probability be forthcoming if sufficient new members are procured here by the time of the annual membership meeting September 28.

Now Has 275 Members
Mr. Bream stated the club had at present 275 members and had several hundred dollars in the treasury but desired to increase its membership to five hundred or more to insure sufficient income to render greater service to its members and visiting members. In the servicing of the latter the local club is reimbursed by the home club of the visitor, Mr. Bream explained.

The speaker added further that the Motor Club is now in a position to render other tangible services to its members the first of which is an insurance policy on all renewals.

The Lions Club had an eighty per cent attendance. C. Paul Cessna, president, was in charge of the meeting.

Gettysburg Girl Injured When Machine Is Forced Off Highway.

Miss Jeanne C. Knox, 20, daughter of Mrs. Mary Knox, 11 Steinwehr avenue, is confined to her home, suffering from a bruised left shoulder, a gash in her right leg and an abrasion on her thumb, the result of an automobile mishap, near Altoona, Sunday afternoon.

Miss Knox, accompanied by her cousin, Miss Marie Eckenrode, with whom she had been visiting in Altoona over the week-end, and Bernard Blake, also of Altoona, was riding in a roadster, when the car was forced off the side of the road, in attempting to pass another machine.

The roadster was almost abreast of the car they were to pass, when the other motorist swerved sharply to the left, forcing the roadster over a small embankment and into a tree. Miss Knox was rendered unconscious, but recovered while enroute to a physician's office. Miss Eckenrode is believed to have suffered internal injuries, while Blake suffered cuts about the face and head.

Miss Knox returned to her home here, Sunday evening, and has been confined since. She expects to resume her duties at Brehm, the tailor, Wednesday or Thursday.

AUTOISTS MEET IN ARENDTSTVILLE

Field Secretary Of Motor Federation Tells Of Activities Of Motor Club.

E. D. McNelly, field secretary of the Pennsylvania Motor Federation, addressed the members of the Gettysburg Motor Club living in the vicinity of Arendtsville, at the Arendtsville fire house. A good representation of the membership was present and they were enthusiastic in their desire to help in the success of the Gettysburg-Adams county motor organization and its membership campaign.

Mr. McNelly emphasized the fact that last year there were 27,000 deaths in the United States due to automobile accidents, and 750,000 injured. The automobile clubs have recognized the seriousness of this situation and are making very definite and constructive efforts to correct it as far as possible, he said.

"The first effort grew out of the Hoover Safety Conference, called in 1925. There were twelve committees appointed to investigate and draw up what might be termed a model motor code for the states. The result of this investigation is gathered in what is known as 'The Hoover Code.' This code was initiated in Pennsylvania by the Pennsylvania Motor Federation at a meeting of mayors in Harrisburg and was adopted at the following legislature. This code was adopted by 18 states in all and in part by 22 other states. This provides for uniform signal system, traffic rules, registration, drivers' licenses, etc.," Mr. McNelly said.

"However, it is felt that the most vital part of this program is the educational effort among school children. The American Automobile Association has provided a very definite program of education which is being used by hundreds of its clubs, in the local communities. Lessons are provided adapted to each grade in school, which in many cases have been adopted as a part of the (Continued on Second Page.)

TELLS STORY OF CONSTITUTION TO ROTARY CLUB

Mrs. Lewars Is Speaker On 141st Anniversary Of Its Framing.

A picture of the men and issues involved in the framing and adoption of the constitution of the United States was painted realistically by Mrs. Elsie Singmaster Lewars, of Gettysburg, before the Rotary club, Monday evening, that although 141 years have passed the statesmen stood out in bold relief against a vivid background of conditions as they existed during those stirring times.

Monday marked the 141st anniversary of the signing of the constitution, and Mrs. Lewars was invited to address the Rotary club's weekly luncheon meeting, held at the United Brethren church, West High street.

People Were Divided
After pointing out that the people of the post-Revolutionary war period were divided on the question of the formation of a central government, Mrs. Lewars, who is the author of a book entitled "The Constitution of the United States," said dissensions among the colonies and the fact that European nations would not negotiate treaties or sell to thirteen individual states accentuated the need for centralization.

"A meeting of representatives of the colonies was finally called to be held in Philadelphia in 1787," Mrs. Lewars said, "and nine states sent 55 representatives. George Washington, who represented Virginia, was the first to arrive, taking four days for the trip from Mt. Vernon. Benjamin Franklin, the oldest delegate present, was 81 years old. The youngest representative was 26."

Washington's Rebuke
Mrs. Lewars described the secret meetings on the first floor of Independence Hall, Philadelphia; how Washington was elected president of the assembly; how guards were stationed around the building so that deliberations would be strictly private; how Washington rebuked one of the delegates for dropping a slip of paper on the floor containing a few notes on the discussion; how only bare minutes of proceedings were kept, and how, finally, in September, after being in session since May, the convention adopted the constitution as we now know it.

So realistically did Mrs. Lewars portray the styles and customs of the day that the dominating figures at the convention seemed to live and breathe again for the Rotarians. She told of their elegant costumes, their handsome appearances and who it was who stood out among those present.

Franklin First To Sign
"It was James Madison," the speaker continued, "who suggested the three-fold system of government as we now know it—the executive, the legislative and the judicial."

On September 15, the constitution was completed and two days later it was signed by 42 of the 55 delegates. Franklin was the first to sign the new document, and Delaware was the first among the states to ratify it. The new constitution (Continued on Second Page.)

The injured man has three sons, C. Layman Weaver, 33, who was working with his father at the time of the accident; Rufus, 31, and Clinton Weaver, 28.

M'SPARRAN CAN'T GET OFF BALLOT

Harrisburg, Sept. 18.—(AP)—John A. McSparran, of Lancaster county, foe of Governor Smith, may have "withdrawn" as the Democratic nominee for Congress from Lancaster county but he is still in the race officially and his name will be printed on the ballots.

McSparran's withdrawal was not received at the state election bureau until today and inasmuch as yesterday was the last day for filing withdrawals, George D. Thorn, chief of the bureau, said it would not be honored.

The refusal of the election bureau to accept McSparran's withdrawal creates a difficult situation for the Democratic state committee. Party leaders had intended nominating another man in place of McSparran, but now will be unable to do so.

'BUCKY' MENSCH IS COMING BACK

Star Will Add To Strength Of Hen Bream's Backfield On College Gridiron.

"Bucky" Mensch, star backfield man of the Orange and Blue two years ago, returns to Gettysburg college to complete his education, and incidentally to battle with about a dozen other candidates for a varsity berth on the Bream-coached aggregation this fall.

The return of Mensch assures Bream of some strong competition for the backfield positions, and it will be a merry scramble to secure the approval of Coach Henry Bream for the first string honors.

With Mensch will be Bill Fisher, Stumpf, Drawbaugh, MacMillan, Snyder, Hubisack and A. Fisher. With this aggregation of husky warriors, all of whom are fleet of foot, line-plunging veterans, Coach Bream will place one of the fastest backfields on the gridiron, this year, ever to represent the Orange and Blue.

Last night more than 85 men reported for the initial workout. This included the turn-out for the freshman squad. Coaches Bream, Frank and Brandiff took charge of the varsity candidates while "Piney" Bender put the yearlings through their limbering up exercises.

Practice sessions will continue at a fast clip to put the 1928 squad in shape for the opening contest with American university, here, September 29. Only three home games will be played this year.

With his team driving hard to win the National League pennant, Walter Rottger, despite his injury a few weeks ago, wants to get back in the Cards' lineup. He's with the club now and says he is going to help out these final few days, but there is much doubt whether Manager Bill McKechnie will use him.

CLUES BOLSTER TALE OF KILLINGS

Human Bones Found On Alleged "Murder Farm" In California.

Los Angeles, Sept. 18.—(AP)—Further evidence substantiating the story that four boys had been abused and put to death on a "murder farm" near Riverside by Stuart G. Northcott, 20-year-old "ape man," was reported to have been uncovered by officers.

Reports from the isolated chicken ranch said that officers had dug up the bones of a child, a piece of vertebrae and some hair.

The discovery was made in a grave located a mile and a half from the chicken house, where Sanford Clark, 15, a nephew of Northcott, told authorities several of the slayings occurred.

Meanwhile the police chemist here was examining bones, etc., found in what appeared to have been shallow graves near the chicken house. There were indications that the bodies of three of the supposed victims may have been recently removed from these graves.

Officers were at work digging up the cement floor of a garage on the ranch on the theory that Northcott may have buried some of his victims there. The search turned in this direction when Cyrus G. Northcott, father of the alleged slayer, revealed that he had seen his son digging there.

Young Northcott and his mother, Mrs. Louisa Northcott, alleged to have been an accomplice in the murders, were still being sought in Western Canada. Filing of murder charges against the pair, authorities said, would await the development of further concrete evidence that the killings actually took place as related by Clark.

Held as a material witness, Cyrus G. Northcott said his son and Clark not only told him of the killing of the boys with an ax, but also that young Northcott related the slaying of a miner after a quarrel in a desert shack.

He was told that a boy, who knew of the miner's death, was taken to the farm and tortured and slain. Whether the boy was one of the four Clark said were slain was not made clear.

The father described his son as an "ape man," whose body was covered with hair three inches long and over whom only his mother could exercise any control.

Police said doubt still existed that Clark's story was correct so far as the identity of the four boys was concerned. They asserted he was mistaken in his statement that Walter Collins, 10, who disappeared last spring from Glendale, was one of the four. Collins, they said, is at home here after being found in Illinois.

STATE EMPLOYEES ASKED TO CHIP IN

Harrisburg, Sept. 18.—(AP)—Circular letters asking contributions to the Pennsylvania Republican campaign were sent out to all state employees today by Benson E. Taylor, chairman of the state finance committee.

The letter asks for no specific amount but Mr. Taylor who is secretary of property and supplies in Governor Fisher's cabinet announced that two attaches of the governor's office had donated three per cent of their annual salaries. The governor himself has given $750, or a little more than four per cent of his salary.

stitution did not meet with instant approval among the various legislatures, Mrs. Lewars said, but as regular curriculum. To supplement this, school boy patrols are organized for the protection of children at street crossings. These officers are trained by the local police, provided with suitable uniforms and many features of training are given of much value to the boys. In many cities where this system has been adopted the death among children attending school have been reduced to absolute zero.

"It is hoped through the Gettysburg Motor Club to have this program of education and safety introduced throughout Adams county."

Mr. McNelly will address members of the club and any who are interested at Fairfield Thursday evening, in the Fairfield school building. His schedule calls for talks also at Aspers, York Springs, New Oxford, Biglerville and Littlestown.

Lack of communication facilities prevented the colonies from uniting as quickly as they otherwise might, the speaker said, but soon the steamboat, railroads and the telegraph knitted the country into the "glorious union we have today."

Mrs. Lewars said her interest in the constitution was aroused while she was attending high school, where she learned the document by memory, later taking a course in constitutional history at Faircliff college.

The colored camp meeting in Wolf's grove, west of town, closed on Sunday night. It was quite a success in numbers and good order. Some half a dozen colored ministers were present during the week. On Sunday afternoon the presiding elder, Rev. M. Givens, of Shippensburg, preached an able sermon on "Hell." At night Rev.
Mr. Allen, of Lancaster, preached on "Jesus, the Wonderful Counselor." It is estimated that there were from 2,000 to 3,000 persons present at both services, mostly white. In closing the services on Sunday evening the presiding elder said the camp throughout had been one of the most pleasant
he had attended; perfect order
being preserved and nothing occurring to give trouble or mar the meetings.

The first term of the new collegiate year of Pennsylvania college has opened with a large accession of new students. The Freshman class numbers 35, the largest number that has entered there for some years. There are now 117 students on the ground, and others still to enter. The preparatory department, under the superintendency of Professor Bikle, assisted by competent instructors, furnishes rare opportunities for boys and young men
preparing for business or college classes. For catalogues or information apply to President Valentine or Professor Bikle.

Bear Excitement.—A few weeks ago a black bear made its appearance on Bear mountain, about two miles above Bendersville, having been seen several times by children of John Wood and also by children of Daniel Smith. It had been paying nocturnal visits to a corn field of Mr. Wood, stripping the ear of husks and corn and leaving the cobs. Several hunting parties from the neighborhood of Bendersville have been in search of him, but have not come across
him.

Barns Burned.—On Wednesday
of last week, about noon, the large bank barn on the farm of Henry Stock, in Hamilton township, caught fire and was totally consumed. The fire began in a straw stack whilst the men were at dinner and is supposed to have originated from sparks carried from a small building nearby in which Mr. Fissel, the tenant, was boiling apple butter. The barn was partially insured in the Dover Co. Mr.
Fissel loses his entire crop of wheat, oats and hay.

Shortly after Mr. Stock's barn caught fire it was noticed that a barn belonging to Samuel Brown, about 100 or 150 yards distant, was also in flames and was totally destroyed, having taken fire from the sparks carried by the wind from the Stock barn. A horse, a number of shoats, wagon and other farming implements were burned,
with the crop. No insurance.

Another.—On Tuesday afternoon about 4 o'clock, the barn on the farm of Joseph Mickley, in Cumberland township, on the Emmitsburg road, about 3 miles from Gettysburg, was found to be on fire, and was entirely destroyed, with the wagon shed, 8 stacks of hay, 3 stacks of oats, a large

CHECKING THE DAY

One counted his money at close of day
And said: "I have something to put away."
Crowds came to buy what I had
to sell,
This was a day when I prospered
well.

Another smiled at the day's review,
"I did," said he, "what I've wished
to do,
Today I was clever and wise and
strong.
A dream has come true which I've cherished long."

"Good day!" said a third. "I'm a richer man
Than I was this morning when you began.
For I met someone I've longed to meet
And we became friends on a city
street."

Which is the richest? Well, money
goes,
And a dream come true marks the
dreaming's close,
But he has a fortune which shall
not end
Who can say at night he has made a friend.

Dog Hill Paragraphs

There is still a lot of public spirit and kindness in the land.
Today Poke Eazley helped push the Tin Peddler's horse and wagon
over a rough place in the road.

Sile Kildew desired to hold a conversation with the Wild Onion School Teacher today, but found he didn't have his dictionary with him.

Sim Flinders says he heard somebody today talking about somebody being a close neighbor to him. Sim says all of his neighbors are close.

Stack of straw, 225 dozen wheat, 30 dozen rye, 60 bushels of wheat in bags, clover seed, a wind will,
the wood work of a wagon, part of a reaper, some carpenter tools and other articles. The property was occupied by Elias Mickley, son of Joseph. There was an insurance of $400 on the barn and $200 on the wagon shed.

Suspicion of having fired the barn is attached to two tramps who came to the house during the afternoon and asked Mrs. Mickley for something to eat. She replied that if they went to the cornfield and helped to cut the corn she would give them their supper. One of the tramps replied that his mother never taught him how to cut corn, and went away apparently in a bad humor. An hour or so afterwards the barn was found to be on fire. Mr. Mickley was at his father's, near Fairfield, assisting to make cider.

About 7 o'clock two tramps
were arrested near the foundry in this place by Officers Rouzer and Sheads and taken before Justice Wolf. Mrs. Mickley was sent for and identified the tramps as the party who called at the house during the afternoon. They were committed to jail.

You remember that by the magic
of the little gold ring the bunny boy had suddenly grown small enough to enter the tiny front door of the white snake's house. Well, no sooner had he seated himself in a chair, which, strange as it may seem, was not the only piece of furniture, the little snake took a book from the bookcase.
"It's a book of travels," she explained, "and tells all about queer people and strange countries. I wish I could travel," and she looked wistfully at the little rabbit.
"You may come with me if you like," he answered.
"I will," answered the little white
snake, and putting on her bonnet,
and hanging her pretty vanity bag
from her neck, she locked the front door and put the key in her purse.
Then, off they started through the cell. The next minute a slender thread fell at his feet.

"Fasten it to your jack knife,"
she called down, "and wasn't it lucky that the thread was so strong that it never broke when the prince pulled the knife up to his window?"

wood, and you would have been surprised to see how fast that little snake could glide over the ground, in and out among the rocks
and the bushes.
After a while they came to a great prison, through the windows of which, guarded by iron bars, the poor prisoners could see only a little of the beautiful big world. At one window a young prince stood mournfully looking through the gratings.
"Do you think we might rescue
this unhappy prince?" queried the little rabbit.
"We can at least try," replied the little white snake. As soon as she had found a hole in the wall,
she disappeared and the bunny boy was left to wait anxiously until he heard her voice high above him.
Looking up, he saw that she had

with the little rabbit at his heels, ran swiftly to the forest, fearing that at any moment the prison
keeper would learn of his escape.
Dear, dear, me! In a little while the wind brought to their ears the baying of hounds. "We are lost," cried the prince. "They will surely find us."
"Fear not," cried the tiny snake
and taking a wonderful scented powder from her vanity bag, she sprinkled it on the soles of their boots.
"Come, let us hasten on our way.
The hounds will never scent us now,
for they will find violets growing
where we have stepped."
"Your words fill me with curiosity," cried the prince. "Are you really a snake?"
"No, I am a princess under a spell. But in three days from now
I shall regain my natural form," answered the little snake, and on she glided in front of them as swiftly as an arrow. Only once did the prince look back, for on finding that patches of violets dotted the ground over which they had hurried, he believed all that the little white snake had told him.
And in the next story you shall hear what happened after that.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

BLENDING

BEAUTY is always harmony. The blending of color, that which thrills and enriches the eye and travels right down to the soul and nestles there.

Unhappy people are those who do not blend with that which is about them. Disappointed people are those who wanted to blend with that which is beautiful but whose paths were crossed by that which could not associate—or blend.

There are so many elements to life. Everything is here. But what an understanding and patient human being it takes to search, never despairing until the proper blend is found.

There are those who may be termed brilliant failures in this world. At times, I believe that we all fit in here. We weave a gorgeous garment and place it upon the object of our love and desire —only to learn that the garment doesn't fit.

But this disappointment is no equal to that of the one who has no garment to offer!

I know nothing of the lives of those who wove the beautiful rug at my feet. Its colors of blended beauty have inspired me over many a year, and I often stop this little typewriter and wonder about the aspirations and hopes and unanswered prayers of those whose fingers wove so long and patiently, but that buried loss is a living thing to me—for into each inch of the weaving I daily drink in an appreciation of all that this beauty gives—years after the fingers that wove have been touched with silence.

He who loves beauty must often suffer the loss of much that he most holds dear. But that loss is never for long. There are always those whose souls are akin to his, whose hearts and thoughts are made to blend.

Nature is a picture of blending. And the hunger of the human heart is for that which will blend with that which it has to offer.

How very beautiful this blending process. And when love comes —and blends with all that you are, or ever hope to be, then that blending is full of sweetness and all is beauty.

Sidelights of New York

New York.—The Jew is represented in almost every field of musical achievement, but the men whom the Jews themselves place in the front rank of their musicians are seldom heard of outside the faith. They are the cantors in the synagogues.

New York has become, since the World War and the Russian revolution, the home of most of the famous cantors from European lands. In this city, where lives an eighth of the world's Hebrew population, the wealthiest congregations are to be found. Cantors of talent are drawn by the lucrative opportunities in New York synagogues. Half a dozen of them have made considerable fortunes here, and earn $15,000 to $20,000 a year in the synagogues, at weddings and at funerals.

Composers, Too

The cantor is, as his name implies, a chanter. He is not only a singer, he is a reader, who recites the prayers of the church with intonations.

Sometimes he uses the richly minor melodies which have endured for centuries in the Hebrew places of worship. Sometimes he composes melodies of his own; in fact, the best cantors spend weeks before the high holidays each year arranging their tonal versions of the prayers.

At least one traditional Jewish religious melody is a part of the classic music of the world: "Kol Nodrei," sung by oppressed Jews in the forests and caves of Spain before the time of Columbus.

When Jascha Heifetz was a boy in Vilna, Poland, he often heard in the synagogue one Cantor Herschman, already renowned there for his talent. Today Herschman is the most famous of New York cantors. He came from Poland half a dozen years ago and his services are constantly in demand in the finest synagogues of the city.

Cantors For Ten Days

At the holiday season from Rosh Hashonah to Yom Kippur, which those of Jewish faith are currently celebrating, many Jews of musical ability leave every-day tasks as storekeepers, salesmen, peddlers and mechanics to become cantors for ten days.

They must grow the beards of orthodoxy before they may preside at ceremonies marking the New Year and the Day of Atonement, and a stock of Jewish joke is about the men who shave during the rest of the year, but let their beards grow long at holiday time so they may sing at special services. Some of them thus add hundreds of dollars to their yearly income.

In many of the reformed congregations the old customs and rites of Judaism have been altered or abandoned. Some admit women to the choirs, and give the rabbi a larger part in the holiday services than the orthodox churches, in which he exhibits his piety alone in an honored corner. But in all the congregations the cantor is still a highly honored figure, the man whose recitations in minor key echo the unchanging essence of the Hebrew faith.

Thaw's Memory Is Poor On Contract

New York, Sept. 18. (AP)—Harry K. Thaw was examined before Supreme Court Justice Valentine Monday relative to a partially illegible document scrawled on hotel paper which Charles E. Davenport, motion picture producer, alleges is a contract executed by Thaw for the making of three pictures. Davenport is suing for $50,000 damages for breach of the agreement he says he had with the defendant.

Thaw, up for examination before trial of the suit, admitted that the paper was in his handwriting and was signed with his signature, but insisted that he knew nothing of the agreement. Also, he admitted that he couldn't decipher it. "I had many things like that," he said, referring to the paper, "but I know nothing about it except that it's my own handwriting." Thaw's attorney explained that his client was often confronted with forgeries of his handwriting.

NEW REMEDY BRINGS RELIEF FROM PILES TO FOLKS HERE

Even Druggists Amazed At Stories Of Quick Results
Obtained

NO ONE NEED SUFFER
WITH PILES ANYMORE

Scores of men and women, some of them suffering years with various forms of piles and hemorrhoids have told druggists here of the wonderful and complete relief they obtained since using the new internal remedy which does away with the need of operations, nasty pills and suppositories.

Among the druggists first introducing this latest thing in medicine are many who can hardly believe the amazing stories told them by enthusiastic users. "Afflicted so badly with piles I was in constant pain and lost 55 pounds—actually fell away from 225 pounds to 165. I already had tried every known remedy with no results when I heard about Colace. Results were wonderful. Inflammation, shooting pains and nervous tension disappeared as if by magic," declared one of the many folks praising it.

The new famous chemist who solved the problem is reputed to be getting enormous royalties as a result of his discovery, and it seems anyone troubled with sore, painful, burning, itching, or bleeding, protruding piles or hemorrhoids can get results in this simple, harmless, scientific way without use of nasty ointments or suppositories. (One druggist says: "The manufacturer authorized me to refund the money of any person no matter how bad or chronic their case might be if not relieved completely, and I've sold it on that basis, but all come back for more or to report relief and praise it." Just a couple tiny pills intensify with a swallow of water at meal time for a few days. Colace Pills do not upset or disturb any normal function and are not a laxative. Purely vegetable, made in world's largest laboratory, certainly no one should neglect themselves another day. YOUR GAS MAN

HOME is where mother is," was the reply of a little girl, whose family moved often, to the question of what place she thought of as home.

Most children feel that way about "home." It isn't the house, nor the furniture, nor the yard, so much as it's Mother, Think Mother, what a blessed duty is yours! You owe it to their childish faith and happiness, to their future memories of home, to keep yourself fresh and cheerful and attractive,—to make where you are truly a home.

You can't afford to spend all your hours in drudgery,—just housekeeping. You've got to be a homemaker, too! That's why you appreciate the helpfulness of modern gas appliances that systematize the household and give you time for the children, time for yourself.

CONSTANT CURLING MAKES A WOMAN'S HAIR BAD

Streaked Locks, Dull And Ugly Patches Look
Worse Daily.

TOUCHING UP GRAY
DISAPPOINTING TOO

If one's hair has become thin and bad with constant curling, waving, permanents or from other causes and the gray hairs have turned ugly shades, ever darker with doctoring and tinting, it is time to quit a few days and give the hair roots, pigment glands and scalp a good vigorous massaging with the finger tips, dipped in a saucer of Lea's Hair Tonic. Right away the scalp takes on a healthier tone—dandruff if any vanishes, and between massaging and the Lea's hair grows out new and thicker and strange as it may appear just by rubbing Lea's into the scalp one begins noticing the gray hair resuming its natural shade of auburn, red, black or blonde as your case may be—nature seems to get back on the job of putting pigment and color into the off-colored locks, dull, faded patches and even locks that have been gray for years. It isn't a shocking change to astonish friends. Experts cannot detect its use, and, of course, patience and its nightly use for a couple of weeks is required after which an application and thorough massaging twice a month more or less seems to keep nature up on her toes. Doesn't stain. Shampoo often as desired; then wave, curl, marcel or get a permanent and results are simply wonderful. Empirical tests in several thousand cases prove it can be steadily used year after year with unvarying results and success. To test, apply to hidden spot the size of a silver dollar a couple weeks and watch results. Lots of beauty shops buy Lea's Hair Tonic and apply under various names of their own, each day for three weeks and occasionally thereafter for reasonable treatment fees or ask for Lea's Hair Tonic at your druggists or send dollar bill to Lea Tonic Co., Brentwood, Md.
